Svengoolie

We have planned a vicious variety of horror for you this month—leading off with a film based on a story from the creator of Tarzan, Edgar Rice Burroughs — The Land That Time Forgot — with Doug McClure finding himself and the wartime crew of a submarine in a strange savage world, complete with prehistoric men and dinosaurs! Then, for fans of the classic Universal films, we will be presenting a visit to the House of Frankenstein — the 1944 film that followed Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man, and stars Boris Karloff, not as the Monster (Glenn Strange takes on that role, for the first time) but as a mad scientist out to continue the work of Dr. Frankenstein, while running afoul of Count Dracula (John Carridine) and Larry Talbot — the Wolf Man! Another vampire is up to “bat” next — as William Marshall returns to the character of Prince Mamuwalde, a victim of the original vampire count, who (much like Larry Talbot) seeks to find release from his cursed existence via voodoo in Scream Blacula Scream — featuring Pam Grier! Our final film for May is similar to House of Frankenstein in that it has a roster of many famous monsters — but this time it's kaiju creatures — Godzilla, Rodan, King Ghidora, and Mothra, among others — who are safely situated on a protected island until alien invaders free them to attack the world once again! This was originally going to be the last Godzilla movie — well, we know how that went. So, in a way, the month begins and ends with dinosaur-like creatures — with a center filling of vampires, plus the added ingredients of additional monsters.
